The Iridium Extreme is about as easy to use as a typical cell phone. It is assigned an international number so it can make calls to any cellular or landline phone in the world for about $1.50 a minute. All calls it receives are free, however the calling party is charged their rate for calling a satellite phone (rates vary by provider). The "Call Forwarding" feature is handy when you wish incoming calls to be diverted to your cell phone to circumvent higher satellite phone rate to the calling party (when you're in cell range). Of course, the 9575 has all the other phone features you've come to expect. Voicemail is free with prepaid service. It is an additional $10 per month on the usage only plan.

The Iridium 9575 includes (at no additional cost) a small magnetic vehicle roof mounted antenna for parked or in-motion communication... This antenna can also be used to place the phone indoors if the antenna is outside. We do recommend this antenna as an option.

The Iridium Extreme 9575 has a lower profile satellite antenna, and this system is 100% global.

Here the Iridium Extreme is connected to the magnetic antenna on top of the vehicle. There is a hands free headset that is useful for when the car is in motion.

Iridium satellite phones have been popular with maritime use for years. The Extreme 9575 is dust and waterproof, so now the phone can be used on a working deck.

Iridium satellites are low-earth orbit with 100% global coverage, so no matter where you sail, you can stay connected.

The bottom of the Iridium allows for two cradles to connect for allowing 3 device connections - External antenna, data port, and recharging.

With the Lithium Ion battery removed, the Iridium SIM Card tray is exposed. Insert the SIM into the tray as shown with the dog-eared side facing the correct
